The Department of Speech and Hearing Sciences (SPHS) supports instruction, research and service, and the primary mission areas of Lamar University through the degree programs offered. The department offers a Bachelor of Science degree in Speech and Hearing Sciences for students interested in pursuing work in the fields of audiology and speech-language pathology (SLP). The undergraduate major is a multidisciplinary pre-professional program that provides a foundation for a graduate specialization, state license, and/or national certification within the professional fields of audiology and SLP.

The graduate programs of study are accredited by the Council on Academic Accreditation (CAA) for the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA). Completion of the master’s degree is mandated by Texas law for professional employment in SLP. The required degree for professional practice in audiology is now the Doctor of Audiology (Au.D.). A new student initiating graduate study at Lamar University must meet all admission requirements of the university (applying at both ApplyTexas (https://www.applytexas.org/) and CSDCAS (https://csdcas.liaisoncas.com/applicant-ux/#/login)). Transfer students or students who wish to enter the Department of Speech and Hearing Sciences programs by change of major must meet admission requirements or have a minimum grade point average of 2.50 or better. Grades of "D" are not acceptable as course completion for required classes in departmental majors, nor are they acceptable as course completion for classes to be used as professional electives by student majors within the department.
